About Podiatry

Podiatry is specialist area of healthcare, allied to medicine which involves care and maintenance of the foot and lower limb conditions. As a Podiatrist my aim is to improve the independence, mobility and general quality of life for patients. I treat a whole host of foot and foot related conditions.

Regular chiropody or podiatry will keep your feet in good working order, some feet need treatment every 6–8 weeks, others just need once a year, just to get their feet looking good for holidays, or just helping someone to manage their nails is all part of my practice.

Regulation

As with doctors, dentists, nurses and other allied health professionals I am registered with the health professions council, and by law I am governed by them to practice at a very high level of professionalism, and by law have to achieve 30 points annually of continued professional development that means I have to keep up to date with all new legislation and new treatments.

Treatments include:

Nail cutting, hard skin, fungal treatment, calluses, corn treatment, biomechanical assessments, nail surgery, home visits also available.
